Dear Parents/Carers,

As you will be aware, your child will be taking the national tests next week. Whilst these tests are important, we try hard to keep them as low key as possible. In recent weeks, time has been spent helping the children prepare for the tests and gain an understanding of the process which we hope will take away much of the nerves and any fear of the unknown. I wish to underline the fact that we want the children to be calm and relaxed about them. With this in mind we ask for your help by making sure your child has lots of sleep leading up to and during the tests. We would like them all to arrive at school bright eyed and without a yawn in sight!

The most important message now is that each child does his or her best. We do not make a big fuss over them once they are on and I am sure you will take the same approach.

It is really important to have full attendance in SATs week. In the event of sickness, a phone call before 8.30am would be much appreciated.

As a reminder I have included the timetable for your information.

SATs Timetable 2019
